What to Pack:

Packing for the Pacific Northwest in August means preparing for a mix of weather conditions. Here's a checklist to help you out:

Layered Clothing:

Lightweight Layers:

- Mornings and evenings can be chilly, even in summer, so pack a light sweater or fleece. T-shirts and Long-Sleeve Shirts: For daytime, when the weather is warmer
- Waterproof Jacket: The region can be quite rainy, even in August, so a good waterproof jacket or rain shell is essential. Opt for shoes that can handle a variety of terrains, from city streets to hiking trails. Waterproof shoes can be a plus.
- Hat and Sunglasses: While it might not be scorching, sunny days can still happen, so sun protection is a good idea.
- Hiking Gear (if you plan to hike):
 - # Hiking Boots/Shoes: Supportive and comfortable.
 - # Backpack: This is for carrying essentials on day hikes.
 - # Water Bottle: Staying hydrated is key.
 - # Bug Spray: Depending on where you're going, especially in forested or marshy areas, you might encounter mosquitoes.
 - # Sunscreen: Even if it's not hot, UV protection is important.
 - # Reusable Water Bottle: Staying hydrated is always important, especially if you're doing outdoor activities.
- Travel Adapter and Chargers: Make sure you can keep your electronics charged.
